ODDITIES IN THE NEWS

Double Trouble—

Cincinnati: George Rohe, a street car motorman, steered his car past a stop-sign Tuesday into the automobile. While he talked to police someone stole his money changer and $2.76.

Butte, Mont.—There was a doctor in the crowd that stood in the warm Spring sunshine gazing upward at men at work removing a cornice from a high building. "Say, doc," said a gazer, "what's the scientific name for what we would be exposing ourselves to if the sun was stronger?" 'Amygdala heleosis' promptly replied the doctor. Which means sunburned tonsils.

The Real McCoy—

Louisville, Ky., There is no such condition as being "on the verge" or having "a touch" of a certain illness, according to Dr. Leo Kanner, director of child psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Dr. Kenner told a meeting of the Louisville Mental Hygiene Clinic recently that a person either is or is not ill—"there is no verge or touch about it."

Interrupted—

Sausalito, Cal.—An automobile went out of control on a downtown street Saturday. smashed through the wall of a vacant store, interrupted a Parent Teachers Association cake sale inside the store, and smashed on through the opposite wall.

Real Mittens—

Omaha, Neb.—Time has handled Joe Brandts wool-lined mittens with kid gloves. Brandt, who lives at Union, purchased them for 87 cents at a Nebraska City store in 1889. Despite 50 years of use, only sign of wear is on the left mitten, where a small crack has been repaired.

Spending—

Washington — The average American city worker spends 33 cents of his dollar for food, 25 cents for housing and fuel, 10 cents for clothing and the remaining 32 cents has to cover all other items in the cost of living, Isidor Lubin. commissioner of the U. S. bureau of labor statistics, said Saturday night. This was the result of a year's study of 14,469 families in 42 cities. The average income of these families was $1515 annually and more than half of them received but $1458 or less. This average family consisted of 3.6 persons. Next to food, housing and clothing the fourth biggest user of the typical American dollar is the automobile, Lubin found.

Class of '96

North Hanover, Mass.—A box turtle found by Priscilla and Nancy Brooks bore the figures '96 and the initials A. R. M. The little girls now are seeking the person who marked the turtle 43 years ago.

Tried Out—

Cleveland, O.—William Smith, 40 lent a friend $1.50 and took a rifle as security. To try it out Smith pointed the gun at a packing box and pulled the trigger. Smith's 2-year-old son, Ernest, crawled out of the box, shot through the hand and cheek. but not injured seriously.

Butte, Mont.—John selon, blind musician, was walking along the street when he bumped into another man. who expostulated, "Can't you watch where you're going? I'm a blind man." "So am I," replied Selon. A heavy wind had apparently prevented each from hearing or "sensing" the other's approach.

Thrifty —

Edinburgh — Thrifty Scotsmen took advantage of Monday's German air raid. Immediately the fighting was over and the Nazi planes had left, many small boats hurried to the locations where German bombs fell into the sea, their occupants gathered in the fish killed by the explosions.

For Toys—

Cincinnati — A University of Minnesota child psychologist told parents Tuesday to have no qualms about giving their children military toys for Christmas. "Toy bombing planes, machine guns, tanks and other miniature machines of Mars are especially desirable as toys for boys," said Dr. John E. Anderson, director of the University of Minnestota's Institute of Child Welfare, in an interview. "These toys are good because they can be manipulated and arranged in patterns. There is no evidence that a child's interest in military toys crops out as a trigger-finger tendency or a drill-sergeant complex in adult life."

MEN'S CLUB HEARS STIRRING ADDRESS AT ANNUAL BANQUET

JOSEPH J. ROSBOROUGH GUEST SPEAKER AT PROMINENT TOWNSHIP MEN'S CLUB MEETING

Members and guests of the Men's Club of Washington Township were privileged to hear an excellent address by Joseph J. Rosborough, former postmaster of Oakland, at the annual banquet at the Congregational church in Niles Thursday evening of last week. The club is made up of prominent men of the township, organized several years ago, for the purpose of promoting civic and social matters of the district.

Previous to the banquet, members and their guests spent a few moments after gathering at the dining room at the church, in visiting. President Erle Hygelund, called the gathering to order after the members were seated at the beautifully decorated tables. Upon being informed that the time had come to elect new club officers, a motion was presented electing the present officers, which was carried unanimously. They were highly complimented on their work.

Frank T. Dusterberry. of Centerville, a charter member of the club gave an interesting "pep" talk, appealing to members to keep the old spirit of the organization alive, and continue to work for the good of the township, and take a more active part in affairs. This Mr. Dusterberry, stated, was the aim of the club at it's organization. He also offered a resolution of Condolence to families of the late John Bunting and Milton C. Wilder, former members. The resolution is published in another place in this issue of The Register. Carl Christensen, chairman of the auditing committee, submitted a report from that committee.

Matters of interest to the club were discussed briefly. Several visitors, including Lt. Commander James Van Cleve. John Stajonavich, F. E. Rogers and G. M. Stratton, were introduced. Henry Snell spoke on the subject of taking in additional members, and creating interest at meetings.

At the conclusion of the dinner, it was found that the Ladies Guild, had a delicious ham left. This was raffled off, being won by George Bonde.

The president then introduced Mr. Rosborough, who presented a most interesting address on the present condition of the world, with the many dictators, and isms. He brought out the fact that since the world had gradually moved away from religious training, these several menaces had appeared in the way of Communist. and the other isms, that have thrown the world into a bloody war. His contention is that we in America, must return to the church and religious teachings, as they are the foundation of our democracy. He is an accomplished orator, with an impressive delivery, and presented his talk in a most forceful manner. It is regrettable that every citizen of the township was not privileged to hear it.

The excellent dinner was served by the Ladies Guild of the Congragational church. About 60 members and guests were present, and enjoyed a very pleasant and enlightening evening.

WEDDING OF LOCAL COUPLE SUNDAY IN HOLY GHOST CHURCH

PAULINE AMARAL IS BRIDE OF E. MEDEIROS; MARRIAGE SERVICE READ BY MGR. A. M. DeSOUZA

Holy Ghost church was the scene of a beautiful marriage ceremony Sunday which united Miss Pauline Amaral and Edwart Medeiros. Mgr A. M. DeSouza officiated at the service which took place at four P. M. and was attended by a large group of friends and relatives of the young couple. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Frank Amaral.

Both of the young people are well known here, having received their educations and made their homes in the township for many years. Mrs. Medeiros is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Amaral of Centerville, and the family home of Mr. Medeiros was in Niles until his recent removal to Santa Clara.

A gown of white chiffon velvet and a long veil was worn by the bride, and she carried a boquet of lilies of the valley, bouvardia and white orchides. She was attended by her sister, Miss Emeline Amaral, who, as maid of honor, was gowned for the occasion in blue taffeta and carried a sheaf of rust and gold chrysanthemums. Bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Amaral of San Carlos, and Miss Helen Kajganich of San Francisco. They were dressed in gold and rust taffeta and carried chrysanthemums of the same colors. Little Miss Myrtle Zanco was flower girl and she was dressed in a costume matching that of the bridesmaids.

George Medeiros of Niles, was groomsman for his brother, and the ushers were Elmer Coit of Centerville, and Donald Aherns of Santa Clara.

Mrs. Amaral, mother of the bride, wore a gown of wine colored velvet and a corsage of gardenias.

Following the ceremony in the church Mr. and Mrs. Amaral entertained at a reception in their home on Alvarado road for the newly married couple. After receiving the congratulations of their friends and relatives Mr. and Mrs. Medeiros left immediately for a week's honeymoon in the southern part of the state.

Upon their return they will make their home in Santa Clara where Mr. Medeiros is interested in business.

OPENING OF DUCK SEASON PROVIDED GOOD SHOOTING

NIMRODS WHO GOT OUT EARLY SUNDAY MORNING HAD BEST SHOOTING FOR SEVERAL YEARS

The opening of the duck season Sunday brought out hunters, old and young, who report fair shooting. in fact better than for several years. Wherever there was a spot on a lake or marsh, hunters planted themselves, well in advance of daybreak, to be ready. Along about 6 o'clock the barrage started Ducks fell everywhere, but the first blast burned them off the local waters and they took out for a more secure spot. Occasional strays furnished shooting for those who waited around during the remainder of the day.

After a reception at the home of the bride the newly married couple left for a week's stay at Santa Cruz.

For the occasion the bride wore a blue wool suit with corresponding accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

POSTMASTER ENOS AT P. M. CONVENTION IN CAPITOL OCT 10-12

HEARS PRESIDENT'S SPEECH AND VISITS HISTORICAL PLACES

Postmaster Edward Enos of Niles returned Sunday from an eighteen day trip to Washington, D. C., where he attended the postmasters convention, an event that brought 4,600 postmasters from all parts of the United States together Convention headquarters were in the Mayflower hotel. Postmaster General James Farley greeted and shook hands with 3,200 postmasters with out faltering or losing his smile when they called upon him in his offices in the postoffice department.

On the trip east Mr. Enos saw many places of historical significance and has a number of interesting souvenirs. While in Washington he was a guest at the Shoreham hotel, which has a nation-wide reputation for its beauty and fine cuisine.

Highlight of the whole trip was the call made by the postmasters to the White House on Oct. 11 where they were greeted at the south portico by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. He was loudly cheered as he began an address to them. Part of his speech was as follows:

"It is a privilege and a pleasure to greet you here at the White House this afternoon. You know when Jim Farley holds a convention it really is a success.

"To you, and through you, to all postmasters of the country I want to express my heartfelt appreciation of all that you and they are doing to maintain our great postal system, as the efficient institution it has become under the able direction of our postmaster general, your friend and mine.

"My friends, let me say I am very happy to say hello although I have not the opportunity to shake you by the hand."

NILES BOY BREAKS LEG IN GRID GAME

JOHN WILLIAMSON HURT WHILE PLAYING WITH WASHINGTON SECOND STRING TEAM AT HAYWARD

John, son of Mrs. Gladys Williamson, suffered a broken leg while playing football with the Washington Hi second string football team at Hayward Saturday. The bones were fractured between the knee and ankle. John was brought to his home here, after being treated, and the leg was set. He was pretty brave about it making no fuss. He is getting along in fine shape at this time.

Fortunately, the school carries insurance on those taking part in athletic contests, so that bills incurred are taken care of through this means.

Another Washington high school boy was injured in the game played at the school Friday afternoon, and last week, two others were injured. not seriously. The school teams just seem to be running into a streak of hard luck just now, so far as injuries are concerned.

NILES C. OF C. HEARS ARGUMENTS FOR OIL BILL

At the Niles Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Florence restaurant Monday Allen Moore, president of the Young Democrats league, presented arguments in favor of the Atkinson Oil Control law, proposition No. 5 on the November election ballot.

George Bonde, president of the group, presided at the meeting. Harold F Grey, of the Alameda Mosquito Abatement league was a guest at the luncheon.

GOLDEN WEDDING TO BE CELEBRATED AT FARRINGTON HOME

E. J. FARRINGTONS WILL RECEIVE FRIENDS AT OPEN HOUSE TOMORROW NIGHT

In celebration of their golden wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Farrington will hold open house for their many friends at a reception between seven and nine P.M. in their home in Niles Canyon, tomorrow night, Saturday. With them in the receiving line will be their daughter, Mrs. Robert Lowery and a granddaughter, Mrs. George Lenz, of Niagara Falls, N. Y. Also here for the occasion are two great grandchildren Master Robert Lenz, and little Miss Brenda Lenz. who will celebrate her first birthday tomorrow also.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrington were farried Oct. 30, 1889, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hill, in East Aurora, New York, and following this a dinner and ball was given in the famous old Lowery House, in Holland, which was known as an historical landmark of that section of the state.

Of special significance is the fact that at one time the Lowery House had been a relay station for stages traveling to Buffalo, New York, and many important personages had registered their names there.

The Farrington and Hill families had large farms in that section of New York. and some members of the families are still located there on the original holdings. The Hill family had originated in England, and the Farringtons in Scotland; the latter settling first in Vermont and later, in 1813 making the trip to New York in wagons drawn by oxen, which took thirteen weeks.

In addition to Mrs. Lowery, four other daughters will help celebrate this occasion. They are Mrs. G. R. Mohn, Mrs. J. W. Myers, Mrs Floyd Sherman and Mrs. Earl Teeter. They, with their families, will gather at the Farrington home on Sunday for a family reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Farrington have lived in Niles for the past fifteen years, since coming from New York, and until his recent retirement Mr. Farrington was engaged in the dairy business.

LEGION PLANNING ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE

WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP POST WILL STAGE ANNUAL FOOTBALL GAME, EVENTS

Buck privates, shave tails and the likes gathered at the Veterans' Memorial hall Wednesday at the regular meeting of the Washington Township post to carry on post business and make plans for the annual Armistice Day program.

The customary football game between the Livermore high school team and the Washington high team will be a feature of the day's program. This is a part of the five-year benefit program the gate receipts going to the Livermore Veteran's hospital. Previous to the game, which will be played at the Washington high school field, a military exhibition will be presented, along with other features.

The post is inviting the public's support in the celebration of the day that meant so much to soldiers and civilians 21 years ago.

HUSKERS LICK FREMONT TEAM WITH 19-0 SCORE

Washington Huskers beat Fremont high school football players with a score of 19 to 0 in a game played Friday on the Washington Union high school gridiron. Albert Silva was captain for the day and he made the first touchdown. Brilliant plays were also made by John Soito, fullback, Thomas Ashton and Mervin Marshall.

Following the game a tea was given for the Fremont girls and members of the Girls league of Washington Union high school were hostesses. Boys of the football squad served refershments for the Fremont players.

Next football game will be this afternoon with Mt. View school considered to be one of the strongest teams n the league.

WELFARE CLUB VOTES TO JOIN ALA. COUNTY GUILD

Members of the Washington Township Welfare club have voted to join the Crippled Children's guild of Alameda county. This was decided at a meeting Monday in the home of Mrs. Wm. H. Ford, of Niles. Mrs. W. L. McWhirter, head of the group, presided at the meeting.

After the business session refreshments were served by the hostess. Mrs. Garrett Norris will be hostess at the next meeting which is to be held Nov. 20th.

COUNTY WATER DIST. PAYS $35,500 FOR CENTERVILLE WORKS

BUSINESS FOUNDED BY M. S. PIRES FIFTY YEARS AGO TURNED OVER MONDAY

Alameda County Water district completed purchase Monday of the $35,500 holdings of the Centerville Water Works. About $10,000 worth of real estate is included in this deal, a part of which is the acreage near Alvarado where a group of wells is located.

M. S. Pires of Oakland organized the original company about fifty years ago, and the incumbent president of the organization was R. H. Cross, president of the First National Bank of San Leandro.

Mrs. Chris Runckle will have charge of the business, taking the place of her late husband, who assisted in organizing the district. She will maintain her business offices in the building vacated by the Centerville Water works. It is also expected that the superintendent of the district, E. A. Richmond and Mrs. Richmond, of Alvarado, will make their home in Centerville in the future.

Transactions concerning this purchase were handled by Mrs. James R. Whipple of Niles, Otto N. Hirsch of Irvington, and Chas. Wauhab of Centerville.

Six towns in Washington township are now served by the Alameda County Water district; they are Niles, Mission San Jose, Irvington, Centerville, Alvarado and Newark. By a special arrangement made recently with the San Francisco Water department water from the Hetch Hetchy system is now available to the county district.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Avery entertained D. R Stout at their home a few days this week. Mr Stout enlisted in the marine corps three years ago, and has spent the time in China. He arrived in San Francisco this week after a 60-day voyage on the U. T. transport Chaumont. He is going on to Norfolk, Va., to join his outfit. He and Mrs. Avery grew up in the same town in West Virginia.

GOSPEL TEMPLE TO BE DEDICATED HERE NEXT SUNDAY

APPROPRIATE SERVICES WILL MARK REMODELING OF OLD ODD FELLOWS LODGE BUILDING

The congregation of the Full Gospel Conference will hold fitting dedicatorial services at the new edifice Sunday, the services to open with a meeting at 11 o'clock in the forenoon with an address of welcome by the pastor. At 2:30 in the afternoon the evengelist, "Cyclone" Jackson, will address the audience. and at 7:30 in the evening, the dedicatorial adress will be made by Fred L. Prewitt. The congregation will enjoy basket lunches at noon and at 5:30 in the afternoon.

The structure is one used as the Odd Fellows lodge hall for a good many years. Mr. Hahn, pastor and several members of the congregation have been at work for several weeks remodeling and renovating it. A new front has been installed, pulpit constructed, the entire building repainted. Seats have been provided for the church room. Mr and Mrs. Hahn, reside on the second floor of the building, and this has been worked over, too.

The state headquarters for the Full Gospel Conference of the World is here at Niles, which brings a good many folks to our city to confer with those at headquarters. Mr and Mrs Fred C Hahn are the pastors.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON

NEW YORK.—Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission, says the proposed safety belt around our shores is a "nice idea," but seems to concede nothing more. He wonders what will happen when "somebody sticks his nose inside the zone."

Our 'Sub' Zone Is 'Nice Idea,' Says Adm. Land

Admiral Land's opinion is that of a technician and expert on obtrusive noses, particularly those of submarines, and, to be more explicit, German submarines. He got the Navy cross for his work in designing and building submarines in the World war, in which he served as commander of the construction corps, and, in 1919, he turned in a searching technical study of what German submarines had done and what they might do in the next war.

The spirited little admiral, a cousin of Charles Lindbergh, has most important business on hand just now, with something like $400,000,000 staked out for building a merchant marine. This business of new ships, and how good a risk they may be on sub-infested seas, is decidedly in his department.

He is a native of Canon City, Colo., born in 1879. After his graduation from Annapolis, he did postgraduate work in naval architecture. Football has engrossed him almost as much as the navy. He was the garrison finish star of that famous "crap game" match between the Army and Navy in 1900, a gridiron hero, and thereafter a successful conciliator in the long-drawn-out army and navy athletics row.

His suavity and persuasiveness are always effective, as when he invited some C. I. O pickets of the maritime commission into his office and talked them into good humor. He succeeded Joseph P. Kennedy as chairman of the commission in February, 1938. He's in a critical goal-keeper's spot just now, and everybody is satisfied.

WORD comes from Paris of the demobilization of Lucien Le Long, the famous dressmaker. The government puts him back on the job designing gowns. "Grace swirl and freedom" has been his rallying cry as a designer. This isn't that kind of war, and perhaps the French think they are wasting his talents as a soldier.

Lucien Le Long Back to 'Grace, Swirl, Freedom'

However, soldiering is one of the best things that M. Le Long does. In the last war, a shell blew him out of a trench into the dressmaking business. Severely wounded, his hearing impaired, he borrowed $2,500, employed 50 midinettes and seamstresses, married the cousin of the late Czar Nicholas of Russia, and ran his business up to a daily gross intake of 1,000,000 francs, employing more than 1,000 women. He took with him into the business a Croix de Guerre and two citations. He had been a liaison officer with Allenby in Palestine.

Brisk and businesslike, although still boyish-looking, he says the happiest day of his life was when he freed women from tubular gowns. He has visited this country frequently and is widely known and popular here. His is one of the most interesting of all "between war" careers.

THIS department gets word from a Washington ringsider that Dr. William M. Leiserson, summoned by the President several months ago to unscramble the National Labor Relations board, has been making swift progress and that, just as a matter of war preparedness, the outlook for labor-employer peace is much better. Previously a member of the national mediation board, he was appointed to the labor board to succeed Donald Wakefield Smith, center of bitter controversy. He is said to have greatly clarified and expedited procedure under the Wagner act.

Dr. Leiserson Loosening Knots In Labor Tieup

He is one of millions of American citizens who in late years have seen their native countries taken prisoner. Born in Estonia, he was brought to this country when he was a small child. At the University of Wisconsin, he was schooled in economics. He obtained his doctorate at Columbia in 1911 and made his career in Wisconsin in various state industrial, employment, labor and workmen's compensation posts.

He personalizes and particularizes each case and sees no hope in "legalistic" solutions of labor problems.

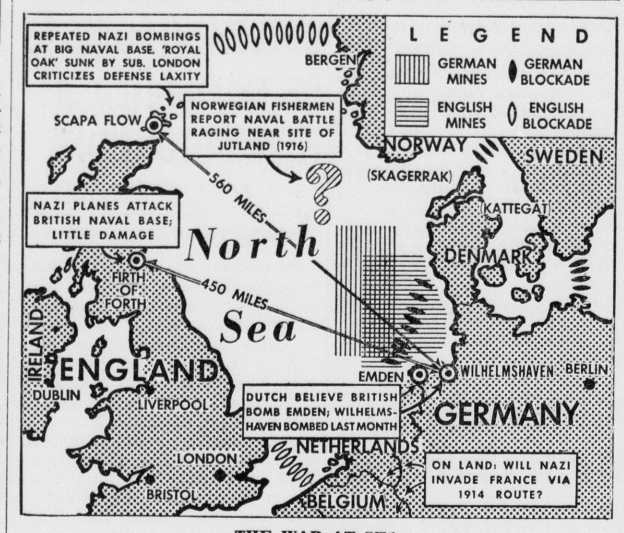
WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Allies Counter Nazi Air Might With Turkish Diplomatic Coup; Italy Seeks Balkan Supremacy

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.



THE WAR AT SEA

Will Nazi air might outpoint Britain's battlewagons?

THE WAR: Diplomacy

In early 1938 Germany's conservative Field Marshal Werner von Blomberg married blonde Erika Gruhn, a carpenter's daughter whom other Nazi officers termed "socially impossible." This month Erika Gruhn felt the news spotlight again in a British "white paper" by Sir Nevile Henderson, pre-war ambassador to Germany. Wrote he to Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax:

"I drew your lordship's attention (in 1938) to the far-reaching and unfortunate results of the Blomberg marriage. I am more than ever convinced of the major disaster which that—in itself—minor incidentinvolved, owing to the consequent elimination from Herr Hitler's entourage of the more moderate of his advisers, such as von Blomberg . . ."

VON BLOMBERG
His wife's war?

Recalled by diplomats was the general army shakeup that followed, in which Baron Konstantin von Neurath lost control of German foreign policy, and pro-war advisors fastened themselves to Hitler. It made a pretty news story: Is a woman the cause of Europe's war?

At Sea

In 1919 the proud but beaten German navy scuttled 72 warships in Scapa Flow (see map) rather than lose them to the allies. In the war of 1939, Germany remembered Scapa Flow. Day after Nazi raiders had bombed the Firth of Forth naval yard at Edinburgh, long-range airships again set out (probably from Wilhelmshaven) and unleashed the full fury of Herr Hitler's air might against Scapa Flow. Five times in four hours they struck, damaging the old Iron Duke and giving Britishers a bad case of jitters. Next day press and parliament railled at Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain for sloppy defense work. The cries grew stronger when Chamberlain revealed the Royal Oak had also been sunk at Scapa Flow by a daring U-boat.

But Britain was not idle in this battle of airship vs. warship; she was merely less communicative than the Nazis, who boasted of their conquests. Next day Hollanders reported the Emden naval base had been bombed, and possibly Wilhelmshaven. Both Danish and Norwegian fishermen scurried for cover when the foes clashed somewhere west of Skagerrak. But the sum total of war at sea, which far overshadows the western front, is that Nazi air might is humbling the supposedly invincible British navy.

(U. S. ships got tangled in the war zone. The liner President Harding was buffeted by stormy weather off the Irish coast and had to seek help from home. The freighter Independence Hall picked up 300 torpedo victims from the City of Mandalay.)

Western Front

Whether by choice or convenience, French-British troops began fighting a defensive war whose principal feature was "strategic retreat." On the 100-mile northern flank of the western front, Nazidom's fighting men opened a vicious offensive which drove allied troops back to their main line. Paris reported one part of this drive, on the Moselle and before Saarbrueken, had cost the Germans 5,000 casualties in two days. The French were apparently content to dig in, letting Germany pay the cost of offensive warfare. But they were also waiting for a clearer definition of Russia's intentions (see THE NEUTRALS). Meanwhile reports persisted that the 20 German divisions massed on the Belgian-Netherlands frontier were not there to enjoy the scenery. The burning question: Will 1914's route of invasion be used again?

THE NEUTRALS: Search for Security

From Scandinavia down through the Balkans to Turkey, diplomats scurried madly after an elusive quantity called security. The reason was Russia, whose grisly head had been shoved into eastern Europe the moment Adolf Hitler opened the door. Although Moscow shipped 17½ tons of gold to Berlin (presumably Polish gold), and although German engineers were busy supervising the Soviet's new five-year plan, the happy wedding of Communism and Naziism seemed to have cost both principals a lot of friends:

Balkans. Russian-Turkish talks in Moscow broke down and Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu left for Istanbul, presumably refusing (1) to close the strategic Dardanelles to all but Russian warships and thus imperil the allies' chances to aid Rumania; (2) to permit Russo-German domination of a Balkan neutral bloc; (3) to recognize the Polish partition, and (4) to permit expansion of Bulgaria and Russia at Rumania's expense. Next day Turkish friendship with the allies was cemented by mutual assistance pacts whereby France, Britain and Turkey agreed to protect the eastern Mediterranean. Meanwhile Turkish troops rushed to northern frontiers.

Commented irked Germany, which promptly snuggled closer to Russia: "It can be taken for certain that other states of the Balkan entente will see in Turkey's attitude a renunciation of the preservation of neutrality which is one of the most important aims of the Balkan states."

But Berlin could not be sure. There was every indication that Italy, which fears a Russian-inspired pan-Slavic movement in the Balkans, would start collaborating with Turkey to preserve the Balkan status quo. Moreover the Italians knew their valued Dodecanese islands off Turkey's coast would be gone the instant Il Duce teamed up with Hitler against the allies.

Baltic. Fearing that Finland might meet the fate of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, all victims of Russia's westward drive, the four Scandinavian powers (Finland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden) met at Stockholm to declare their solidarity. President Roosevelt sent his best wishes, having received the day before an answer to his note to Soviet President Michael Kalinin. Said the answer: "The sole aim (of Finnish-Russian negotiations) is the consolidation of reciprocal relations between the Soviet Union and Finland." There was still no official announcement of Russian "demands," but everyone knew Russia wanted naval and air bases on Finnish Baltic islands.

CONGRESS: Budding Friendship

Three weeks of neutrality debate had passed before the word "filibuster" was mentioned on the senate floor. Yet isolationists were making a fillibuster in everything but name. West Virginia's Rush D. Holt began vying with North Dakota's Gerald Nye as No. 1 speechmaker. Idaho's D. Worth Clark offered the best oratory: "If Germany is destroyed, her people will be driven into the arms of Stalin . . . This holier-than-thou attitude of England is a pretext . . . It illbehooves England and France, with their records of persecution within their own borders, to refuse to at least treat for peace. The trail of the British empire is built on two things—blood and treachery."

McADOO
A good lobbyist.

But behind scenes there was compromise on the two most debatable points. Repeal of the arms embargo was certain, but isolationists demanded "cash-on-the-barrelhead" instead of 90-day credits to belligerents. Shippers and seaboard states demanded that proposed restrictions on U. S. shipping be relaxed. One of the latter lobbyists whose word carried weight was former Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo, now a west coast shipping executive, whose call at the White House was followed quickly by modification proposals.

Key Pittman, administration leader, called his foreign affairs henchmen into council and observers were pretty sure they'd win most isolationists with these concessions:

1. Designating areas where U. S. ships could carry all materials except armament, i. e., lands like Australia and New Zealand.
2. If a U. S. vessel is destroyed with loss of life, the President would automatically stop trade in that vicinity.
3. The U. S. would not support a shipper's claim against a foreign government if a cargo is destroyed.
4. Vessel masters would be required to give the U. S. a statement of their cargo, detailing consignees and scheduled ports-of-call.
5. The entire western hemisphere would be opened to commercial aircraft.
6. "Cash-on-the-barrelhead" would be imposed not only against foreign governments, but upon residents of those countries.

From such compromise, Democratic wheelhorses saw hope for 1940. If the President disowns third-term ambitions before congress opens next January, and if he avoids any new reform or spending program, observers were pretty certain the once-disheveled Democratic party would hang together until election time.

MISCELLANY: Jews

Meeting at Washington, the international executive committee on refugees received an appeal from U. S. Jews to consider the plight of 5,000,000 Jews in eastern and central Europe, including those made homeless by the Polish partition. Meanwhile, President Roosevelt was handed a petition bearing 238,000 names, urging steps to make Palestine a Jewish haven. Next day the committee recessed for two weeks to query member governments.

Public Sentiment Grows Insistent To Keep Out of European Muddle

Unmistakable Change Is Going on Throughout the Country; People Make Known Their Feelings and Their Thought Is Reflected in Congress.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—While the Roosevelt administration continues to subordinate everything to the general subject of the European war, there has been an unmistakable change in sentiment going on throughout the country and in the capital city. It is inescapable to the merest tyro of an observer. It represents a crystallization of that foggy thing called public sentiment.

The senate has debated the issue of repeal of the arms embargo to the fullest, but the debate has fallen short of telling the whole truth. There was an entire lack of any truly great speeches. Much additional light has been thrown on the whole question of a neutrality policy, yes; but I believe the senate failed to do the job in a way that history will measure as statesmanlike. The amazing fact is, therefore, that public sentiment should have solidified so definitely in such a short time, with a verdict that says: "We will stay out of that European mess; it is not ours, and we will not play their game."

It is always difficult to describe what takes place in the matter of public sentiment, powerful as it is in the United States. But it is easy to describe the condition, the status, of national thought as represented by an overwhelming majority of the citizens. In the current case, it can be told in two sentences. A few weeks ago, the big shots of government were saying: "possibly" we can keep out of war; the present statement is that "probably" we can keep out of the war. It is a vital difference.

The reason for this is obvious. People have made known their feelings. They have made clear that whatever else they may differ about, they are determined and united on the one proposition, namely, that we must not get tangled up with Europe's power politics. Further, existence of this sentiment has been thoroughly reflected in congress and those who would willingly toss our armies into the flame have begun to get scared about their own hides.

Clark Takes Wallop at Assistant Secretary of War

I must qualify that statement that all of the big shots have toned down their remarks. Several continue to shout in an inflammatory way. The best known of these is Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war. It is unnecessary for me to discuss Johnson's unwise statements. I can quote a real authority, for Senator Bennett Clark, the Missouri Democrat, dealt quite fully with the assistant secretary's utterances—especially that in which Mr. Johnson said that "if the United States were not fully prepared for war, it would be overrun like Poland." Of that remark, Senator Clark had this to say, during the arms embargo debate in the senate:

"In my judgment, no more idiotic, moronic or unpatriotic remark ever has been made by a man in high public office . .

"This is the same Louis Johnson who has been flying around the country in an army airplane for the last several years, preaching the inevitability of war and the certainty of our being drawn in and drawing horrific pictures with grisly prophecies of our shores being invaded and our own land being laid waste."

But after Senator Clark had streamlined the assistant secretary of war, he proceeded to fall off into the deepest water of demagoguery by attacking President Roosevelt's selection of members of the war resources board. To make that eagle scream in its shrillest notes, Senator Clark described it as a "Morgan-duPont board," which, to anyone who knows the facts, is a rather silly statement.

With respect to the attack on Mr. Johnson, I only wish that Senator Clark had gone ahead with disclosures so that the long-continued row in the war department could have had an airing.

Johnson Reported Seeking Job of Secretary of War

It is no longer a secret in Washington that Mr. Johnson has been trying for months to get the job of secretary of war. He and Mr. Woodring do not get along, and have not for much of the time the assistant secretary has been on the job. The result has been continual friction, a handicapping of department policies and a general fear among army officers. They are afraid they will get tangled up in departmental politics and every officer knows if he guesses wrong, the chances of getting top flight assignments are nil.

As can readily be seen, such a situation in a policy-making agency of government certainly does the nation no good. It is said that President Roosevelt sees Assistant Secretary Johnson more frequently than he confers with Mr. Woodring, the head of the department. Whether that is true or not, it is a fact that the President has done nothing at all to settle the long-standing row.

Getting back to the senate debate, attention ought to be turned momentarily to the defeat of the motion to separate the arms embargo question from that involved in the "cash and carry" sections of the bill. Senator Tobey, New Hampshire Republican, proposed that the bill be split up, because there was virtually an unanimous vote in prospect for a law that would let American business sell ordinary supplies to both sides of the European struggle, provided the buyers came here in their own ships, paid cash for their purchases and hauled them away in their own vessels.

Short shrift was made of that motion. It was licked by more than two to one. The reason: if the "cash and carry" section were disposed of, there would be so much less interest in the arms embargo repeal that its eventual defeat would be entirely possible.

Old Party Whip Is Used To Keep Followers in Line

Which brings us back to the subject of politics. It will be remembered that President Roosevelt called for an "adjournment of politics," during the dangerous period. No one made the open charge in debate, but there were plenty of senators who felt that the President exerted pressure to keep his own followers in line. The administration's leaders were quite well aware that a titanic struggle confronted them to obtain repeal of the arms embargo if it were cut loose from the "cash and carry" section. So the old party whip was brought into play.

But all of the changes that have taken place in the country's thought have had one reaction in Washington that is not obvious to those living outside of the capital city. I have reported to you before how the little clique that surrounds the President—extreme radicals and men with dreams who know how they will disappear if Democrats instead of New Dealers are in control—saw in the possibility of war an assurance of President Roosevelt's election to a third term. They were rubbing their hands and licking their chops because they saw themselves certain to continue in their jobs, exercising great power. The lack of enthusiasm for their plans has left them with nothing to do but mope and sulk. Their strategy has been blown up under their own noses. They do not know what to do about it.

The question that now confronts the country, from a political standpoint, is whether the European war will run six months or a year or six years. The answer to the question is vital to the politicians.

It is especially important to those who would "draft" Mr. Roosevelt to run for a third term, and I think it is being studied with great care by such men as Postmaster General Farley and Vice President Garner. It is being studied with equal care by Senators Taft of Ohio, and Vandenberg of Michigan, each of whom has a whole flock of Presidential bees swarming inside of his Republican bonnet.

Farley Has Party Control Locked Up in His Own Safe

It has been noted, repeatedly, how the arms embargo debate has found many of the anti-administration Democrats aligned with the President, favoring repeal. Most of the senators whom President Roosevelt sought to "purge" from the Democratic party believe with the Chief Executive that the embargo ought to be repealed. Some few of the ardent Roosevelt supporters are standing against repeal. The interesting fact is that the intra-party row, among the Democrats, has had no effect upon the stand taken by the party members in the embargo controversy. And, thus, there has been considerable speculation whether there is to be a healing of the wounds. I think there will not be. The differences seem too deeply seated.

However, that may be, it can be said now that "Big Jim" Farley, who is chairman of the New York State Democratic committee in addition to being chairman of the National Democratic committee, has control of the party locked up in his own safe. If he chooses to align himself with the Garner-Harrison group, Mr. Roosevelt and his followers are through, washed up. If he decides to support Mr. Roosevelt again, the anti-Roosevelt Democrats will be tossed about like a straw in a whirlwind. It appears to this observer as of this time that the swing of public sentiment definitely against anything in the nature of American participation in the European war probably will mean a Farley swing to the Garner-Harrison side of the line.

New and Important Easy-to-Do Fashions

IF YOU take a large size, then 1835 is a pattern you'll thoroughly enjoy, and make up time and again. Excellent for housework, with darted, unconfining waistline and deep armholes, it is so neatly tailored and smart looking that you can receive your supper guests in it, too, and wear it for shopping and runabout. For home wear, make it of gingham or percale. For street wear, choose thin wool or flat crepe, and omit the pockets.

Pleats Are Smart.

If you spend most of your hours in an office or at college, then a dress like 1814 is a joyful necessity. It's blithe, tailored, becoming and youthful, with box-pleated skirt and button-front bodice, finished with a crisp little collar to keep it always fresh and new-looking. Make it up in plaid wool or in bright-colored jersey—or in both. It's too good a design to make up only once!

The Patterns.

No. 1835 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4⅛ yards of 39-inch material; ⅝ yard of contrast; 2½ yards bias fold or braid.

No. 1814 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 requires 3¾ yards of 54-inch material; ½ yard contrast.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Tale of the Galloping Tooth"

HELLO EVERYBODY:

You may have been in France during the unpleasantness that went on there in 1914-1918. You may have seen towns shelled to a crumbling ruin. You may have seen regiments decimated by poison gas. You may have seen men torn to pieces by bursting grenades and families pauperized and turned out of their homes by the onward plunge of the great German war machine. You may think you know all the horrors of war, but Don Aspinwall of Rochelle Park, N. J., will tell you you haven't seen anything.

Don was somewhere in the Villers Cotteret area on special duty with the Second division. A deafening barrage had been rolling back and forth across the lines for more than two hours. The Germans were tossing every form of pyrotechnic display in their bag of tricks. Huge 9.2's roared overhead like great express trains. Machine-gun bullets zipped by. An occasional ash can from a miniewerfer battery would tumble lazily through the early morning haze to spread itself with a devastating roar in front of the barbed wire. It was a swell time to be someplace else. But horror? Horror, nothing! The real horror was going on right inside Don Aspinwalls face.

Don Had a Toothache.

It was undoubtedly the outstanding disaster of the whole war. It had been going on for 24 hours and Don was convinced that if it went on two hours longer nothing could keep the Germans from taking Paris. And Don was miles away from any possible agency of relief. The only thing that could have stopped that ache would be a well-placed bullet, and Don was all in favor of that. "I tell you," he says, "the actual Gospel truth. I poked my head over

"He had no anesthetic, but glancing behind me I knew the worst. A stolid-faced six-foot Yorkshire orderly had sneaked in."

the top of the trench several times and gave Jerry the Bronx Salute in the sincere hope that some German officer might take offense and order me erased with a machine-gun, field battery or some other similarly effective weapon."

Attempts at Suicide Came Back Labeled "No, Dice."

But no German officer would have been sucker enough to halt such an effective blow to the Allied cause. All Don's attempts at suicide came back to him labeled, "No Dice." He had to wait until he was relieved from duty and then, in a semi-delirium he lit out for the nearest British medical unit two miles away. Eventually he got there and was ushered into the presence of a brass hat who turned him over to a young medical lieutenant. "It took him five minutes to diagnose the case of acute toothache," says Don, and then he seated me in an improvised dental chair and looked worried. It seems there wasn't any local anesthetic in that part of the country and—well—what to do?

Don told him what to do. He told him to get that tooth out of there and to hell with the anesthetic. That didn't seem quite cricket to the young Englishman. He demurred for a moment. Then he seemed to have an idea and said, "All right, Yank. But I say, it will bally-well hurt you more than it does me."

"With those words of comfort," says Don, "he stepped out for a minute. When he came back I watched him open a shabby black bag and produce a none-too-clean pair of ordinary gas pliers. He had no anesthetic, but glancing behind me I knew the worst. A stolid-faced six-foot Yorkshire orderly had sneaked in. He stood at my back toying with the barrel of a massive British Webley navy type revolver and gauging the distance to certain sections of my skull with a practiced eye. I didn't have long to think about that though."

Don didn't have any time to think about it at all. The minute he turned his head he felt something hit it that felt like a nudge from a howitzer. There was a blinding flash and a million stars, pin-wheels, constellations and blue lights danced before his eyes.

"I began to fall into a deep, black void," he says. "At last, I thought, the Germans had planted a nice, juicy shell under the dental chair, and I was all ready to put forth my hand and receive my harp and halo. Then I began to be aware of a disconcerting fact. I could still feel a dull throb where my toothache had been, and now there was another dull throb in the back of my head."

Gradually both old and new throbs increased in intensity. The black before Don's eyes faded to a gray haze, and through it he began to see the features of the young British medical attendant. There was a large moving blur behind the attendant. The haze cleared a little more and Don could see it was the Yorkshire orderly. The orderly was calmly wiping the butt of his Webley and Don distinctly remembers noticing that several brown hairs still adhered to that butt. Don's hair is brown, too. He says that might, or might not, have been a coincidence.

And What a Climax.

And then the doctor spoke.

Don couldn't hear what he was saying very well, but the picture of what happened was beginning to take shape in his brain. That Yorkshire orderly had been the anesthetic. He had socked Don on the coco with the butt of that revolver. And now the medical attendant seemed to be apologetic about it.

Don stopped him. "Don't worry, doc," he said. "It's all right with me. It was a swell job, even if your anesthetic was a bit rough."

The attendant shook his head and began to repeat his words. "Then," says Don, "my confused brain began to function as I heard that Englishman say, 'Oh, I'm sorry, Yank, but I haven't done anything yet, you know. You see my orderly worked too fast and I had to wait until you come out of it SO YOU COULD TELL ME WHICH TOOTH IT WAS!' "

Scientists Find 2 Distinct Kinds of Locusts

There are two races of the periodical cicada—the seventeen-year race and another that appears every 13 years. Scientists have found no differences in the two except that one remains underground in the larva sand pupa stages four years longer than the other.

Every year is locust year in some part of the country. There are 17 different broods of the 17 year race and thirteen broods of the 13-year race, writes a correspondent in the Chicago Tribune. The broods have been catalogued by Roman numbers. Broods Nos. 1 to 17 compose the 17-year race. The 13-year race is numbered from 18 to 30. Broods are thus easily distinguished.

There is overlapping of the territories occupied by the two races and also by the different broods. In some sections, however, the locusts only appear at 13 or 17-year intervals, indicating the presence of only one brood.

The periodical cicadas are not found in the western part of the United States. They live mainly in the wooded regions from the Atlantic coast westward to central Kansas.

THAT argument between Bette Davis and Warner Brothers should set a record of some kind. Usually a star protests because she either wants better stories or more money. Miss Davis didn't want either.

She gets the best stories that the studio can find; in fact, the executives can't hear of a good one without trying to buy it for her. The latest purchase is "No Time for Comedy," the play that Katharine Cornell has been doing so successfully for so long on the New York stage. It's said that George Brent will play opposite Miss Davis, in the role done in New York by Laurence Olivier.

Miss Davis' complaint is that they buy too many of these good stories for her—in other words, she works too hard. Since last January she has made "Juarez," "Dark Victory," "The Old Maid," and "Elizabeth and Essex," which makes an impressive record.

Its producers work with law enforcement authorities, and each case that is dramatized is based on facts supplied by official agencies.

They didn't dare pause to consider the rest of the public, who went to hear them play.

So Shaw has come out into the open, rebelling against being goaded into writing autographs when he's due on the stage, resenting being jeered at when he doesn't do as he's asked. His radio sponsors feared that it might affect his popularity. Far from it—he attracts more people than ever.

WARS SELDOM HELP FARMER

Expert Advises Adherence To Crop Schedule.

By Dr. V. R. WERTZ

Regardless of whether or not the armies of the world decide on stepping up the pace of war, many American farmers are willing to try a gamble which appears to be a losing proposition unless economic laws are repealed by mass hysteria of the world's inhabitants. This would seem apparent from facts available to the rural economics department of Ohio State university.

It may be possible that mathematics are blown out the window when wars occur but it is a matter of historical record that numerals have their old values when wars end. The farmers who are betting their judgment against statistics are the farmers who are abandoning their planned crop schedules to plant an unusual amount of wheat this fall and coming spring.

These farmers give two reasons for believing that extra acres of wheat will be profitable; first, rapid increases in grain prices occurred immediately after this war began; and second, wheat prices started upward in 1916 and continued to rise until pegged at a bonanza figure.

Such increases as may occur in grain prices are no more than the farmer deserves, but it is doubtful if the planting of a markedly increased acreage of wheat is the proper method to add dollars to the 1940 farm income. Several reasons present themselves for doubting that unusually large wheat harvest next year will be profitable for its producers.

The chief reason is that the granaries of the world already are bursting with the largest stocks of wheat that have been known since records were kept. The world price of wheat in Liverpool last July was the lowest on record since Queen Elizabeth ruled England.

A second reason for doubting the advisability of increasing wheat acreages in the United States is that consumption of wheat does not increase in time of war although prices may rise if supplies fall to normal or below. Any unwarranted rise in wheat and flour prices in the United States is certain to be met by resistance from consumers.

Local Seeds Best

Seeds from trees in the backyard or along a neighbor's fence are likely to produce better trees than those from distant places, says R. W. Graeber, forester of the North Carolina State college extension service.

The reason for this, Graeber explained, is that trees must be thoroughly adapted to the climate of the planting site. Seed of even the same species gathered at great distances from the planting location cannot compete with the home-grown product.

Sooner or later, the State college forester said, a variation occurs in the size of the seedling trees and in their survival, usually in favor of the home-area seedlings. Local seed are considered to be those obtained within a hundred miles of the planting site and with a difference in elevation of not more than 1,000 feet.

Soil-Erosion Is Now Nation-Wide Problem

Although "man-made" soil erosion increased year by year in this country as settlers moved west, it was not until 1933 that the problem was attacked on a nationwide scale. In that year the soil erosion service, now the soil conservation service, was organized.

During the past six years, 175 demonstration areas have been established in 45 states and Puerto Rico, the service says in a current statement. Erosion control work is going forward under technical supervision of the service near more than 350 CCC camps. Hundreds of individual farms are being replanned for soil conservation in co-operation with state extension services.

Over the country as a whole the soil conservation service demonstration program includes co-operative agreements with nearly 70,000 land-holders and covers more than 12 million acres of privately owned land.

Deer Problem

In a number of eastern states, the excess high population of whitetail deer is proving to be a serious problem to the farmer. Pennsylvania has erected many miles of deer-proof fences. Michigan is now experimenting with electric fences to keep deer from damaging crops, the National Wildlife federation reports. One Michigan farmer, given permission to kill trespassing deer, shot 14 in one field, then quit in disgust with the deer still coming.

Home Equality

An extensive survey taken at Pasadena, Calif., relative to father's place in the home, revealed that the majority of mothers believe if father will just keep out of the kitchen he isn't a bad person to help out along other lines of housework. The final conclusion was that America is achieving equality in home making —meaning that father is doing an increasing share of the "housework."

American Decoration

American visitors to the ex-Kaiser's palace at Potsdam are not only reminded by the guide that an American President once dined there, but are shown the famous Shell room whose walls and ceiling are studded with semi-precious stones, and an agate-looking slab which he describes as, "petrified wood from your own country, from a petrified forest in Arizona."

Oldest Boy Citizen

"Oldest citizen of Brussels," Belgium, is but a boy who has functioned ingeniously as a fountain for 300 years. He has a private income, has been decorated by emperors and kings, and has a famous wardrobe which he wears on occasion without interference with his fountain function.

Boy's Toy

Members of the Charlestown branch of the Boys Club of Boston have completed a 59-inch telescope for exhibition at the Boys Club of America's annual convention in New York city. The boys constructed the telescope in club science classes, even grinding the six-inch optical mirror.

Washington Tunnels Dangerous

Two men, never one alone, inspect heating tunnels connecting official buildings in Washington. Temperatures reach 160 degrees Fahrenheit in hot spots and collapse might be serious for a man alone, since tunnel traffic is light.

Javanese in Holland

At Arnhem and its suburbs in Holland visitors may often see nurses from Java of the Dutch East Indies. They care for the children of the wealthy executives of East Indies concerns who have retired to handsome villas in their native Holland.

First White Visitor

On March 6, 1521, Ferdinand Magellan, the first white man to go to the South Sea islands, landed on Guam, the southernmost island of the Marianas group.

Coffee Grounds Oil

Science has found a way to recover the oil from coffee grounds and to use it in refining sugar and in other processes.

Wood for Matches

About 300,000 mature trees are needed each year to manufacture 287,000,000,000 wooden matches in the United States.

Banana Exports

Bananas are the principal export crop of Costa Rico.

No More Ponies

Karachi, India, municipal corporation has decided to cut off the water supply to the local race course, the only one in Sind which runs a weekly race meeting. "It is purely a gambling concern and has ruined thousands of citizens," says the council.

Speed Takes Oil

When the biggest ocean liners step up their speed, they use 50 per cent more oil for every knot above 28.

BUCK ROGERS RIDES AGAIN

Fourteen deer hunters were shot or died from other causes during the recent hunting season, statistics revealed yesterday. Ten hunters died last year. Six victims were slain by other hunters who though they saw deer moving in the brush; five died after shooting themselves accidentally, and three succumbed from other causes. The State fish and game commission reported that 41,337 deer were killed to date, compared with 33.860 last season.

The new fangled hats the women were parading Sunday brought to mind the experience of a farm woman, who, although she liked to be right up to snuff with her dress, was a little conservative when it came to those freak hats. However, she got one and to get used to the darned thing she wore it out in the barn yard while she did the milking. The cow switched her tail and knocked the hat off. The lady tried on three or four before she found her hat.

Years ago in an old town of north Missouri, a man brought suit for $200 against a neighbor who had killed his dog, and engaged Senator Vest to plead the case. The senator made the following remarkable address—considered the finest classic gem of its kind in the history of forensic oratory, and he did not prepare for it:

"Gentlemen of the Jury:

"The best human friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter that he has reared with loving care may prove ungrateful. Those who are nearest and dearest to us, those whom we trust with our happiness and good name may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has he may lose. It flies away from him, perhaps when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. The people who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us may be the first to throw the stone of malice when failure settles its cloud upon our head. The absolutely unselfish friend that a man can have in this selfish world, the one that never deceives him. the one that never proves ungrateful and treacherous is his dog.

A man's dog stands by him in prosperity and in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground where the wintry winds blow and the snow drifts fiercely, if only he will be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer. He will lick the wounds and sores that come in encounter with roughness of the world. He guards the sleep of his pauper master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert he remains. When riches take wings and reputation fails he is as constant in love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drive the master forth an outcast into the world, friendless and romeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying to guard against danger, to fight against enemies, and when the last scene of all comes and when death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold round, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the graveside may the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness. faithful and true even in death."

Then the senator sat down. He had spoken in a low voice, almost without gesture He had made no reference to the evidence or merits of the case. When he finished the judge and jury were wiping their eyes. The jury filed out but soon returne dwith verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $500.

Some tall duck stories are coming in. One fellow, who apparently had a kink in his gun got eight ducks with 125 shells. Of course he'll tell you his gun don't pattern, but he is probably like a lot more of us. we just don't shoot where we are looking. They tell about another one who bought himself a swell automatic, picturing a bag full of green heads with but a few licks of his new firing piece. He learned of the regulation requiring the plug to reduce his barrage to three shots. Did he burn. He forthwith got himself two double barrel guns, so he could get in four shots. He'd bear down with one gun for his brace of blasts and then quickly grab up his other two-pipe gun for another volley. It's a gay life these ducks have—or ain't it.

DICTATORS!

What Do You Know About Them?

Nearly every intelligent voter, who reads before he votes, knows by this time that extravagant pension provisions of the Ham and Eggs scheme are just bait for the trap. The gold brick promise of 30-Every-Thursday is simply the come-on, designed to camouflage the fact that this Communist-backed program would give its promoters absolute power as DICTATORS OF CALIFORNIA!

What Are The Records of These Would-Be Dictators

Here Are Their Records:

Willis Allen, director of the Ham and Eggs movement, was convicted in Federal Court in 1937 of misuse of the mails for fraudulent misrepresentation in a hair-tonic promotion scheme.

His brother, Lawrence Allen, co-director of Ham and Eggs, was on the front pages just a year ago on asserted forgery charges.

DO YOU WANT "THE ALLEN BOYS" AND THEIR TRIBE AS DICTATORS OF CALIFORNIA?

Nathan T. Porter, the Ham and Eggs "banking expert", was president of the defunct National Thrift Corporation when it went bankrupt a few years ago, wiping out millions of dollars in savings of 30,000 small investors.

DO YOU WANT MR. PORTER AS HEAD OF THE PROPOSED HAM AND EGGS BANK — FINANCED WITH YOUR MONEY AND AS SOLE CUSTODIAN OF YOUR TAX FUNDS?

Wake up voters! California has been a good, clean place to live. Let's keep it that way. California wants no would-be Huey Longs. And California wants no part of the ruin and disaster that would follow enactment of the Ham and Eggs plan.

I got real value when I equipped my home for GAS HEAT

IN the new homes you have seen being built everywhere during the past year — nine out of ten are equipped for gas heating. Why? The answer is that gas heating equipment gives more real value, is less expensive to buy than other types of heating equipment which will do the same satisfactory heating job.

One year from now or ten years from now, the owners of these homes will be just as enthusiastic about gas heating as they are right now. Year after year nothing can give as much comfort, convenience and all 'round satisfaction. Why not investigate gas heating for your home? Take advantage of the exceptionally easy purchase terms now in effect for all types of gas heating equipment. You can afford gas heating. It costs no more than old-fashioned methods of heating.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. David Jebb is a passenger on the crack train, the Nord-Express, with Ostend as his immediate destination. He is bound for America. With him is five-year-old Cynthia Thatcher, his charming young temporary ward. On the train they meet Big Bill Gaines, former classmate and fraternity brother of David's. He tells Gaines of his mission, and of his one unconquerable vice—an overwhelming desire for liquor. Jebb feels the urge coming to him again, and wants to safeguard the child, whose father is dead, and whose mother waits her coming in America. During a stop, Gaines leaves the train to buy a present for Cynthia. The train pulls out without him. Then Jebb is slightly, but painfully, injured in a minor accident. A fellow-passenger gives him a drink, which makes his desire for liquor all the stronger.

After Cynthia had wasted a long and weary while of tenderness upon the wretch whose torment was so much beyond her comprehension, she grew fretful of her own account and began to ask for a story. "Tell me a story, Nunkie Dave."

"I don't know any new ones, honey."

"Tell Thinthy about madic carpet."

From his chaotic remembrance of that tangled chaos of countless-colored skins, the "Arabian Nights," Jebb brought out a twisted yarn:

"Once upon a time there was a poor old sailor named Sindbad, and he was sailing across Sahara in a ship of the desert, that is—the back of a camel—you've seen 'em at circuses."

"What wath the camelth name, Nunkie Dave?"

"The camel's name was Clarence, I think. And he was thinking of his beautiful little daughter."

"Oh, did the camel have a daughter?"

"No, it's Sindbad I'm speaking of."

"What wath her name, Nunkie Dave?"

"The daughter's name was Bridget, I believe—or Patricia, I forget which."

"Where did little Bridthet live?"

"See here, young lady, am I telling a story or passing an examination? If you're not careful, I'll make you tell the story. She lived in Constantinople, I believe. Can you spell it?" The curls shook violently. "It's a C and an I and a constanti, and a steeple and a stople and a constantinople."

This old lyric entranced the child and she had to learn it. But, once mastered, she was hot on the trail of Sindbad the sailor. And she forced the frantic mind of Jebb back into the harness. He went on:

"Well, as Sindbad was sailing across the sand and sailing across the sand and a-sailing across the sand what should he see ahead of him but a—a bottle."

The word was out and it was like a knife in Jebb's heart. But he churned on:

"So Sindbad said to the camel, 'Whoa, Dobbin!' "

With the fanatic accuracy of a child in matters of narrative, she insisted:

"Hith name was Clarenth."

"That's right. He said, 'Whoa, Clarence,' and Clarence whoa'd, and Sindbad threw out the rope fire-escape and climbed down and tied Clarence to a hitching post that happened to be standing there, and he picked up the bottle and pulled out the cork with a corkscrew he always carried, and as soon as the cork was out, what do you suppose popped out of the bottle?"

"Milk?"

"Not milk but a—ugh! a genie!"

"Whath a genie?"

"A genie is—well, it's—a—er—see that big cloud out there that looks like a giant on a draught-horse? Well, a genie is a terrible being as big as that—a kind of a horrible fairy goblin demon. And he had been corked up in that bottle by an old magician, and he was just aching for some poor fool—er fellow to come along and pull the cork so that he could chew him up."

"Wooh!" gasped Cynthia, cuddling closer.

"That's what the genie said: 'Wooh!' You see he had been locked up there about three million hundred years and he was hungry, and he was just going to gobble Sindbad up when—"

"Umm! Did Mr. Thinpat get scared?"

"Scared! His teeth went clickety-click like this train. But, just as the genie was sprinkling some salt on him to make him taste better, Sindbad happened to remember the right charm. He waved his wand and yelled, 'Abracadabra, p r e s t o-changeo, snicker-snee!'

"And you should have seen that genie wilt. He got down on the ground and said, 'Please, Massa Sindbad, don't put me in the bottle any more. Let me work for you.' You see, Cynthia, some people have the magic charm, and they can make the bottle-genie work for them and cheer them up and be their slave, but other poor fellows don't know the word, and they become the genie's slaves."

Cynthia, like most of her sex, was not for moralizing, but for plot. So Jebb went on:

"Sindbad said, 'Look here, you black rascal, I want to get home and see my little daughter Susie'—"

"Her name ith Bridthet."

" 'My daughter Bridget, and I want to get home quick. D'you understand?' And the genie said, 'Yes, Massa Sindbad, you're agoing to be da in a jiffy.' "

"Whath a jiffy, Nunkie?"

"That's something I never could find out, honey. But the genie knew and he brought out a magic carpet."

"Did he have it in his pocket?"

"He must have had."

"How could he get a carpet in a bottle?"

"You'll have to ask him. Genies are very peculiar. But he brought it out and spread it on the ground, and said, 'All aboard!'—and Sindbad stepped on it, and the genie said, 'Hold fast!' and rang the bell twice, and the next moment Sindbad found himself at home in Constantinople, and his little girl—what do you suppose was the first thing she said?"

"She said, 'What did you bring me for a prethent?' "

"That's just what she said. And her father said to the genie, 'Here, you black rascal, what did we bring the little girl?' And the genie took out of his suitcase the most beautiful—but here we are at Cologne, honey. Let's get out and take a breath of air and see the Cathedral."

A window of quaint and alien design.

Cynthia, like many another, cared more for the architecture of event than of stone. She insisted:

"But what did the genie bring the little girl?"

"We'll open the suitcase when the train starts again. It will do us good, honey, to stretch our legs a bit."

Jebb was impatient to be moving. He could not imagine what was in the suitcase, and he felt that if he sat in the train another moment he would leap through the window and carry the glass flying.

Taking Cynthia by the hand he descended from the car, leaving all their hand-luggage except the small Gladstone containing the precious drawings. This he carried in gingerly manner, his turbaned thumb yelping with pain at the slightest jar.

Learning that the train would rest at Cologne some minutes, he struck out across the platform. Cynthia was hungry; the loss of the oranges had whetted her appetite. There was a refreshment room in the station, but Jebb thought they would better step outside and take a look at the Cathedral towering above them like a storm cloud.

Of all the eyes that have stared at that carven mountain in the many centuries since it began to upheave its mass above the town, not many eyes could have regarded it with less observation. The child's thoughts were turned inward upon the fascinating mysteries of the gift the genie brought to Miss Bridget Sindbad. Jebb's eyes ran here and there like foxes in a cage, with the restlessness of a man in torment.

His shifty gaze was caught by the sign of the Dom Hotel, with the coffee-house adjoining. People were seated at tables. Some of them were reading the papers one finds there. All of them had some liquor before them. Jebb shivered with desire, his knees wavered. The genie of alcohol was fuming from the bottle and he knew no subduing charm.

It usurped his will. He could not wish to subdue it. Everything on earth became a mirage, the two things real were the thirst consuming him, and the relief at hand.

Throwing off irresolution as something contemptible he stalked majestically across the street, the little girl toddling alongside, haud passibus aequis.

She never questioned the probity of her guide. If she felt a little fear that they were going too far it was lost in her trust of Nunkie Dave. She made one comment as her feet pattered across the rough cobbles of the city:

"It don't thmell like cologne, Nunkie Dave."

A voice came from his high-held head:

"So Coleridge said, honey."

She panted as she ran:

"Who wath he, Nunkie Dave?"

"He was the man who wrote the 'Ancient Mariner.' "

"Who wath he, Nunkie Dave?"

"He was the man who slew the albatross."

"Whath a albatroth, Nunkie Dave?"

"It was a beautiful bird, honey, and the man that killed it suffered horribly of thirst. You must never, never slay the albatross, honey—never slay the albatross. It's the unpardonable crime."

Strolling along the Domhof, Jebb and Cynthia soon reached the Dom Hotel. Jebb took the child to the dining-room, told an elderly waiter to bring her what she wanted, cautioned her not to stir till he came back, and kissing her good-by, made straight for the wine-room.

Cynthia had never heard of Casabianca, but she shared his grit. She and the waiter, who spoke a little dining-room English, and had five or six little Kindchen of his own, became great friends. It was a pleasanter place to wait than on a burning deck, but Cynthia's appetite was soon sated, the waiter speedily emptied his English vocabulary, and his bag of tricks for amusing a child jaded with delay. And still Jebb did not return. Loneliness for her playmate, and terror for his loss, agitated the child, and she was fretting:

"I want Nunkie Dave! I want Nunkie Dave!" And then, that cry failing, she began to whimper:

"I want my mamma!"

At last Jebb arrived at the door of the dining-room. Cynthia precipitated herself across the floor with a shriek of joy that disturbed the solemn room. The waiter followed to explain with much joviality and some policy, how long and well he had entertained his charge.

Jebb, with a remarkable magnificence of manner, called for the reckoning and paid it with a gold piece of ten marks, and bade him keep the change.

The rain of gold had begun. Mr. Croesus was himself again.

Leaving the voluminous waiter palpitant with admiration, Jebb took Cynthia's hand and they went back to the station. In his other hand he still grasped the Gladstone.

His manner to the child was one of lofty tenderness, of the courtesy an ancient knight would have shown a ladye of high degree, mingled with the absentmindedness of a poet whose thoughts were busied with some great theme.

"Seems to me, honey, that the train was headed other way when we left. Prob'ly—probab-ly I'm mistaken. Get turned round easily in foreign countries."

In his eagerness to board the train he tried to walk over and through a gorgeous officer who looked to be at least a taker of cities instead of tickets. On demand Jebb brought out his pocketbook and produced the remainder of a ticket and a half to Ostend.

He was informed that his train was, "Vor langer Zeit gegangen."

With an air of angelic patience Jebb informed the man, whom he called "Mein lieber General," that he desired and intended to take the train standing before him. The guard, greatly touched by the title (he had been a soldier, of course), informed the distinguished sir that the train was no longer the Nord-Express, but the Ostend-Vienna Express and that other tickets would be required.

Jebb replied that that made nothing to him out, and went to the ticket office where, in German of surprising correctness, he called for one and one-half tickets. The man in the cage naturally inquired, though in less aristocratic German:

"Please, for what station, my sir?"

Jebb smiled airily and quoted a remembered line.

"What stations have you?"

The beard within waved like wheat and the ticket-seller answered with a laugh.

"Frankfort-am-Main, Homburg, Wurzburg."

"Wurzburg, eh? That tastes good to me. (Das schmeckt mir gut.)"

CHAPTER III

Hovering a little this side of sleep, his drowsy eyes saw, or seemed to see, through a window of quaint and alien design, a distant tower of soaring stature, just visible in the dim light of daybreak. At its topmost tip the rising sun had coaxed a rose to bloom. The rest of the slim shaft was still enveloped in violet shadow.

In a balcony circling the tower he rather imagined than descried a mote of a figure, and rather dreamed than heard a voice far, far away, and crying:

"Allahu Akbar! Allahu Akbar! Allahu Akbar! Allahu Akbar!"

It was only on its fourth intonation that he made out the words, and then they meant nothing to him. There followed a chant in the same strange language, so mellowed by remoteness that it interwove with the dream-rug on the loom of Jebb's drowsiness. The words were strange and there was no meaning, only a foreign music, in that concluding phrase, "Prayers are better than sleep," which the drowsy and dubious muezzin, weary of the steep spiral stairway, adds to the sunrise Azan.

When his eyes actually perceived the minaret through the latticed window, and made out what manner of room he was in, he sat up with a start. He fell back immediately. His nerves jangled like a harp thrown to the floor.

To move his head ever so slightly was to put himself on the rack, but curiosity forced him to endure the turning of his face so that he could study his whereabouts. Wonder filled him till he thought he was back in a dream.

The last thing he remembered was a sense of drowsiness on a train in Germany. But this was neither a train, nor Germany.

"This is Japan," thought Jebb, who had never been there.

He lay on a sort of wall-platform covered with a heap of cotton mattresses. Over him were spread quilts of delicate fabric. On the floor were many rugs tinted like heaps of autumnal leaves.

"This is Persia," he concluded, thinking of the rugs. He had never been to Persia.

At some vaguely later period he thought he heard the creak of an opened door, and his own leaden eyelids seemed to creak as he heaved them ajar. The door was indeed slightly opened, and peering into the room was a face. It was the black and glistening skull of a Negroid—something more than a Negro and less than a man.

3,000 Kinds of Sandpaper Used in Industry

There comes the time in the domestic life of the man of the house when of all things in the world he yearns, with super-powered earnestness, for a bit of sandpaper, maybe not large enough to cover a canceled postage stamp.

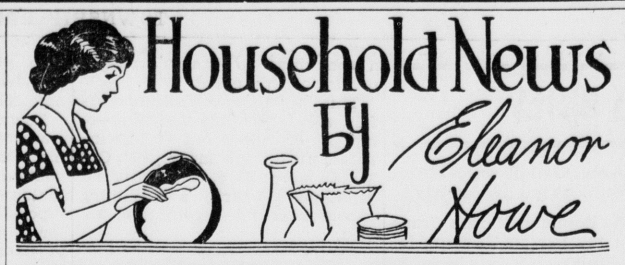
But, at the immediate moment, that scrap of sandpaper is worth its weight in gold to him and it is nonexistent in his otherwise happy home. It gives him small comfort, then, to be informed that there are in this country manufacturing plants where the abrasive stuff is turned out by the acre, where miles of the material, in the making, are run through automatic machines and, further, that the growing uses for sandpaper in all sorts of industries are steadily increasing its output.

Most sandpaper is not paper, and sand is not the scratchy stuff which makes it useful, but the material always will be known as sandpaper.

"Sandpaper has ceased to be mere grains of sand glued to paper and has become a tool with thousands of cutting edges," D. H. Killeffer of New York says in a report to the American Chemical society. "Variations of as much as 1,000 per cent in the usefulness of sandpaper were formerly common. Today myriads of tiny cutting edges, arranged and held in orderly array, cut surfaces instead of wearing down surfaces by mere friction.

"Literally millions of dollars' worth of sandpaper are consumed annually in scores of different industries. Production of such widely different articles as fine furniture and felt hats, automobiles and airplanes, shoes and steel specimens, machine work and marbles, gem stones and golf clubs, consume acreages of coated abrasives. Much of the product designated as sandpaper is not made with paper and a minimum proportion of it uses sand, in the sense of silicon dioxide, as an abrasive.

"Some 3,000 varieties of coated abrasives are required to meet the needs of users, and each must be accurately fitted to certain specific requirements. Above all, each of the three thousand must be made with the greatest possible uniformity and at a unit price that must be kept down. The most important development in this industry has been the process of securing uniformity in distribution and position of abrasive particles on the sheet by using an electric field.



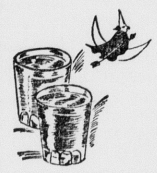
PUMPKIN PIES FOR HALLOWEEN
See Recipes Below.

When Witches and Goblins Roam

What night is better suited to informal entertaining than all Hallow's Eve? Candlelight, leering Jack-o-lanterns, and crepe paper decorations in orange and black create an eerie atmosphere for an evening of hilarious fun.

No one "dresses"—or, if they do, they dress in grotesque costumes which only add to the festivity.

Entertainment is simple, and easy to provide. Old fortune telling games and bobbing for apples are always fun, and a trip through a "chamber of horrors" is as much a part of Halloween as are good things to eat.



For variety, and a lull in the excitement of wilder entertainment, you might try a "paper and pencil game"—a prize to be given to the guest who can list the greatest number of superstitions, or answer the greatest number of questions in a "Cat Questionnaire" (for example), "What cat is an ancient burying place?" (catacomb) and "What cat is a plant of the mint family?" (catnip).

Food for a Halloween gathering is simple and substantial—baked beans with brown bread, cabbage slaw, and coffee; doughnuts with mulled cider, or pumpkin pies a la mode. You'll find among the following suggestions some that are old and some that are new.

Caramel Pecan Tarts.
(Makes 6 tarts)

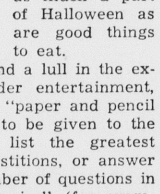
1 can sweetened condensed milk
2 tablespoons hot water
6 small tart shells
½ cup nut meats (cut fine)

Place the unopened can of sweetened condensed milk in a kettle of boiling water, and keep at boiling point for three hours. (Be sure to keep can covered with water.) Remove the caramelized milk from the can and blend with two tablespoons hot water, beating until smooth. Cool. Pour into baked tart shells, and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Cut pattern of cat from stiff white paper. With a sharp knife, carefully cut cats from pastry, using the paper pattern as a guide. Place on cookie sheet and bake in hot oven (450 degrees). Cool and place one on each tart before serving.

Chocolate Indians.

½ cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
2 ozs. chocolate (melted)
½ cup bread flour
Dash salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup nuts (broken)

Cream the butter and add sugar slowly. Add the eggs and beat well. Add the melted chocolate, flour, salt, vanilla extract and nuts, blending lightly. Bake in a shallow layer in a well greased pan in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 to 35 minutes. Remove from pan and cut in bars while hot.



Harvest Moon Doughnuts.
(Makes 24 doughnuts)

¼ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
4 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Fat for deep fat frying

Cream butter and sugar. Beat in eggs. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with milk. Add vanilla. Roll dough ¼-inch thick and cut with doughnut cutter. Fry in deep fat at 385 degrees until doughnuts are brown.

Sausage Roll-Em-Ups.

4 small pork sausages
4 long slices bread
Prepared mustard
Melted butter

Cook pork sausages until lightly browned. Spread bread with prepared mustard. Wrap the sausages in the bread and fasten with a toothpick. Brush with melted butter—covering outside entirely. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) until brown. Garnish with crisp bacon and parsley.

Taffy Apples.

2 cups granulated sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
¾ cup water
Red liquid coloring (few drops)
12 red apples
12 skewers
Few drops oil of peppermint, cinnamon or cloves

Wash apples thoroughly and dry them. Insert skewer in blossom end. Put sugar, corn syrup and water into a saucepan and cook, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Continue cooking without stirring until the temperature 300 degrees F. is reached—crack stage.

Wash crystals away from side of saucepan as mixture cooks. Cook slowly during latter part of period so that syrup will not darken. Remove from flame and set saucepan into boiling water. Note: A double boiler may be used for this. Add coloring and flavoring and stir just enough to mix well.

Holding apple by skewer, plunge it into hot syrup. Draw it out quickly and twirl it until the syrup runs down to the stick and spreads smoothly over the apple. Stand skewer in a small glass or cake rack so that apple will not touch anything while cooling.

Apples should be made the day they are to be used because moisture from apple will soften candy and make it sticky. Dipping must be done rapidly or syrup will become too stiff for coating.

The football season is in full swing! One of these chilly Saturdays it would be a grand treat to let the youngsters bring "the gang" home from the game for a football supper.

Desired Extra Bathroom Need Take Little Space

Few houses are being built today without two bathrooms, or at least a bathroom and extra lavatory. In the modernization of an old house, consideration should be given to this feature.

Plumbing authorities have found that the essential fixtures of a bathroom can be installed in a floor space which measures five feet one way and six feet the other. Space at the unused end of the hallway often may be converted into an extra bathroom, and in some cases an oversized bedroom may be converted into a guest suite by partitioning it and including a bathroom.

Well-Laden Pigeons

During the four-months siege of Paris in 1870-1871, 56,000 official dispatches and a million private letters were brought into the city by pigeons. The messages had been set in type, photographed in microscopic size and printed on thin films of collodion, so that a bird could carry as many as 40,000 letters at one time.

Such a cargo, at the pigeon-post rate of 10 cents a word, would have cost $56,000 in postage.—Collier's.

FOR Children's SNIFFLES

SPARE your child much of the misery of sniffling, sneezing, and smothery nostrils due to colds by inserting Mentholatum in his nostrils.

This gentle ointment soothes and protects irritated mucous membrane, reduces swelling, and thus opens breathing passages wider. It soon checks sneezing and sniffling.

Also rub Mentholatum on the child's chest, back, and neck. This will improve local blood circulation and help relieve cold discomforts more effectively.

Mentholatum helps in so many ways that you should always remember this: For Discomforts of Colds—Mentholatum. Link them together in your mind.

Watch Your Kidneys!
Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: A friend gave me a copy of your Book 3 and I can't tell you what a transformation is taking place in my home because of it. For a long time I have wanted living room curtains with smoothly fitted valances stiffened with buckram. Could you give me step-by-step directions for making them?"

A four-inch valance shelf; buckram and thumbtacks are the only "extras" needed. 1: Cut the buckram the exact size of the finished valance—no seam allowances. The chintz for the valance and the facing material are cut larger as indicated. 2: Outline the scallops by drawing around the buckram. 3: Stitch the chintz and facing with right sides together. Steps 4, 5, and 6: Trim the scallops; clip between them; then turn and press. 7: Insert the buckram; fitting it smoothly into the scallops. Turn in and stitch the top; allowing ½ inch to extend above the buckram. 8: Tack this soft edge to the shelf.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Mending Pillow Slips. — Hemstitched pillow slips that are too badly torn to mend neatly can have the hem cut away and a picot edge crocheted on.

Browned Potatoes.—Before frying cold potatoes slice them and well dredge with flour. This not only causes the potatoes to brown more quickly but improves flavor.

Biscuit Pans.—A shallow pan about one inch deep is the best to use in baking biscuits; otherwise the biscuits will not brown evenly on all sides.

Save the floors.—Wax the bottom of glass or wooden cups placed under furniture. Furniture may then be moved more easily and in moving it will not scratch the floors.

RING THE BELL

An Italian who was working on a railway in Florida had been told to beware of rattlesnakes, but was assured that they would always give the warning rattle before striking.

One day he was sitting on a pine log eating his dinner when he saw a big snake coiled a few feet in front of him. Keeping an eye on the reptile, he began to raise his feet from the ground, and as he did so the snake's fangs hit the bark beneath him, no warning having been given.

"Son of a gun!" yelled the Italian. "Why you no ringa da bell?"

Hasty Regrets Follow Hasty Conclusions

Jimmy, who had been climbing trees, came in for the second time within the week with his trousers torn.

"This time you can go upstairs and mend them yourself," ordered the harassed mother.

Some time later she went upstairs to see how he was getting along. She found the trousers there, but no Jimmy.

Puzzled, she came downstairs, still looking for Jimmy. She noticed, as she passed, that the cellar door, usually shut, was open. She went to the door and called down loudly and angrily, "Are you running around down there without your trousers on?"

The reply came in a stern and heavy masculine voice: "No, madam, I'm reading the gas meter."

SUPT. HARTMAN TAKES MASONIC GROUP TO FAIR

Supt. Frank B. Hartman of the Masonic home is entering upon his 31st year of service with a record of taking 175 of the 350 members of the home family to the San Francisco World's fair and home again without accident, and of furnishing "everything" which might contribute to their happiness, even to $1.50 or its equivalent, for each excursionist, for spending money.

The service of affording opportunity to every member of the home so desiring, and physically able to make the trip, was in keeping with the wishes of the board of trustees, representing the grand lodge. Announcement of the plan of the trustees, during the 90th communication, gave the 1600 assembled delegates thrill which will endure the rest of their lives.

An important unit of Supt. Hartman's Treasure island excursion was his provision for the inclusion of quite a large number of men and women unable to make the outing without escorts.

Incidentally the average age of the 200 men of the home is 75.05 and that of the 148 women, 73.29.

RESOLUTION OF RESPECT BY MENS' CLUB OF WASH. TOWN.

Since our last meeting the SUPREME RULER, in his wisdom, has removed from our midst, our esteemed and beloved members:

Past President — John Antrim Bunting.

Past Treasurer—Milton C. Wilder.

John Bunting was a descendent of one of the pioneer families of Washington Township and lived pratically his entire life in our midst.

Milton Wilder was also of pioneer stock. He came to the Township as a young man and for over twenty years was identified with the business interests of this community.

Both were faithful and loyal members of our Club and cheerfully accepted their full share of work and responsibility. Their death, so early in life, arouses a tragic sadness in the passing of personalities so richly endowed with clarity of mind and warmth of heart. In their daily life they exhibited those qualities that make a man a good friend, a good husband, and a good neighbor and which we think typify the true spirit of good America citizenship.

We will fiss their cheery smile and warm hand clasp at our meeting and in our daily contacts and are reminded by their passing that eventually the same summons will come to us all.

Be it directed that we stand in silence in respect to their memory and that this tribute be spread in full upon the records of this meeting and a copy be sent to the families of our late members.

Respectfully submitted
F. T. Dusterberry

Changing World

Dr. Paul Popenoe, head of the Pasadena, Calif., Family Relations institute, has ascertained that marriage proposals are changing. In the first place, he said, it is rare that marriage proposals are ever made now in the home; in the second place, they are made more frequently away from the home, and in the third place, they are frequently taken frivolously.

ORTHO SPRAYS
P. C. Hansen Lbr. Co.
NILES CENTERVILLE DECOTO

NOW YOU CAN DO IT TOO!
Here is fascinating news that concerns YOUR entire future! News that now brings Success and Happiness right to YOUR doorstep!
Walter P. Chrysler: "Of great interest and value."
Wm. Wrigley, Jr.: "Thousands must have been waiting for something just like this."
Thomas A. Edison: "Extremely interesting and of great practical value."
Only something unusual could bring similar praise from thousands of America's leading men and women.
And something unusual HAS happened! — a book that concerns YOU and YOUR success and happiness.
It deals with the biggest problem you and all of us face: The problem of "getting along" with others, of making others like us, of influencing those with whom we come in contact in business, social and every-day life.
Why is this your most important problem? Because ONLY through OTHERS is it possible for any of us to succeed — to get what we want from life. Your difficulties of today — your setbacks and successes of the past — do you not find other people always at the root of them — friend, relative, employer, employee, associate, superior?
Successful men and women recognize this need of influencing others as their most important life problem.
John D. Rockefeller knew it when he said, "Ability to deal with human nature is a 'commodity' for which I will pay more than for any other thing under the sun."
Andrew Carnegie knew it when he paid Charles Schwab a salary of a million dollars a year "not for what he knows about making steel but because he knows how to please and influence people."
And Schwab knew it: "Many of us think of salesmen as people traveling around with sample kits. Instead we are ALL salesmen, every day of our lives. We are selling our ideas, our plans, our energies, our enthusiasm, to those with whom we come in contact."
That famous, startling scientific report recognized it: "Even in very technical lines, only 15 per cent of one's financial success is due to one's technical knowledge, and 85 per cent is due to personality and ability to influence and lead others." (RE-READ THAT AMAZING STATEMENT! It is, in exact essence, the report of a long study by the Carnegie Institute of Technology!)
This all-important "knack" of influencing and swaying others was for centuries mysteriously called "personality," "magnetism," "charm." But modern science has been making breath-taking discoveries!
Our great psychology laboratories have found that successful people exercise their great influence over others through a definite set of psychological "laws" — simple but powerful rules which enable them to "handle" people in every step in life.
Mystery was entirely swept aside — the way was opened for all to master this tremendous power of influence over others — when Webb and Morgan gathered together these "laws," put them into a fascinating, easily-understood book, "Strategy in Handling People."
Now this book, which aroused such wholehearted enthusiasm from Chrysler, Edison, Wrigley and thousands of other successful people, is available to you — in its COMPLETE 260-page word-for-word form — at a price you can well afford!
No book like it has ever been written before. Fascinating as a detective story, it rips aside the curtain of "mystery." Through dramatic incidents in the lives of over 200 successful people it explains exactly how they have used the set of "laws" to gain personal power and success and how YOU can do it.
It tells how YOUR OWN every-day problems have been solved by the world's ablest men and women — how YOU can use their simple, powerful method to increase your influence over the people around you — to make all people like you — to charm and impress friends and strangers — to "handle" superiors and subordinates — to get loyalty and cooperation — to size up people — to master difficult personal and business situations — to move swiftly toward the success you want!
